OUR SATURDAY NIGHT

"What are you worth above the neck?" This peculiar question is running through the magazines as the headline to an advertisement of a correspondence school, and it is so significant that it merits more than passing thought.

When men take account of themselves it is not customary to divide the body into two parts, and when the man is at his best it is not necessary to so divide it, but there is an army of people whose ability and earning capacity is below the neck.

They are satisfied with physical and muscular development, or with no development at all, and graduate, either as dependent loafers, or with limited ability which commands in the open market from one to two dollars a day when times are good.

While physical development is commendable, and not to be neglected, if the work stops here it is incomplete, and the man is less than half the man the great Creator intended he should be.

There are three things which contribute to this class of growth. Two of them, eating and sleeping, are demanded by nature, and the third, exercise, is natural to all kinds of animal life, so it comes to pass that the average man and woman, in normal condition, possesses a physical organism at maturity, which is equal to the strain of conflict in the great arena of life.

The red men of the forest, free from the demands of civilization, and carefree as well, present a type of physical development which stands the test of endurance, and puts to blush the modern athlete under the most careful and expert training.

In one of the silver mining camps of Old Mexico, located back in the mountains 75 miles from a railroad, four Indians are employed to carry the mail. They make the round trip over the mountain trail in four days, and start two days apart, thus giving the camp three mails a week.

They are known as runners and the entire distance, except the steep mountain climb, is made on the run. These dusky brothers are worth $25 a month and board, below the neck. They have no desire to better their condition and are therefore satisfied.

The construction work of railroads and public utilities is done almost exclusively by foreigners because the average American citizen, of moderate ability, does not take kindly to the pick and shovel or trenches.

The trades where expert skill is in demand, are also more or less neglected, because the average American boy prefers the office or store with a limited income to the shop or bench, with larger possibilities.

The easiest and most genteel way to eke out an existence, is the controlling influence in many lives which are worth more below than above the neck.

There are three forces which, when working in harmony, produce a well-rounded and complete life. They are known as physical, mental and moral. The mental or brain power is located above the neck, and the supposition is quite common that a man is at his best when he combines with physical strength and energy the power of thought from a well-trained mind.

This is not always true, for some of the worst failures in life are found among a class of people who enjoy every advantage for mind training, and who are mentally well equipped. The old saying that "knowledge is power" is only half true, and is frequently misleading. A man may be as full of knowledge as an encyclopedia, and yet so aimless and impractical as to be absolutely dependent.

Knowledge, like steam, must be applied, to produce results. The engine that stands on the track under heavy pressure, and with safety valve wide open will stand there until she becomes a dead engine, unless the steam is applied. So many people, boiling over with knowledge, are sidetracked and helpless through lack of application.

The notion is common that the measure of success attained in any calling depends upon the amount of mind investment. While this is important, there is another element which contributes more largely to success and that is the investment of the heart.

Make a round of the public schools, and note the difference in teachers. All are well equipped, so far as mental attainments are concerned, but here and there is a girl whose heart is in the work. She loves child-life, and the children soon discover it. A bond of sympathy develops and the discipline of the room is a discipline of love and cheerful obedience.

Three classes of workers are found in every department of toil. The first work by the clock and are always at the rear of the procession. The second invest thought, and are aided by the resources of a well-trained mind. The third put into their work their very life, and are so absorbed by it that it becomes the controlling interest of their being. The choice prizes of life are won by this latter class of workers. They are the conscientious toilers always in demand.

"What are you worth above the neck?" That depends very largely on the location of the heart, not the organ which pumps the life-giving current through the body with such tireless regularity. When this organ ceases to throb it is as dead as any other part of the organism, but the soul, which no man has seen, and yet which is ever present.

The invisible, intangible part of being which inspires hope, prompts ambition, loves and hates at will, the fountain of impulses good or bad, the part of us which lives on and out into the beyond, no man hath seen or located.

Science recently attempted to discover the weight of a soul. A man was weighed, just before the breath left the body, and again immediately after, but the experiment was futile. The spirit took its long flight to be tested in balances adjusted more minutely than any yet devised by finite skill.

What the entire man is worth above and below the neck, not in dollars and cents, nor in fame or honor, but what he is worth to his day and generation, is largely determined by the value which he places upon the soul within him, and the influence which it exerts upon his life.

We develop and care for our bodies which is well. We cultivate our minds and stimulate the brain to action, and this is always commendable, but the easiest thing to neglect is the most important part of our being, and that is the soul with its persistent voice always pleading for the right.

There are times when it is easy to overcome this neglect, and such a time is now offered to Janesville people. It is well to improve these opportunities for they contribute to the worth and value of every life.

PRESS COMMENT.
Shool! Sheboygan Journal: Oshkosh is threatened with a gasoline famine. Presumably the flies have drunk it up.

Acknowledges the Corn.
Milwaukee Journal: Milwaukee water is good, says the city engineer. It ought to be. It has enough competition.

Very Sweet.
Appleton Crescent: We are not much on poetry, but how's this: "Watch the Oshkosh oil-can fleet, how it makes mosquitos sneeze?"

Now It's One Big Parade.
Oshkosh Northwestern: What has become of the old fashioned bride who would not appear in public for two weeks prior to her wedding day?

Needs That $25,000.
Menasha Record: Senator La Follette has started in on another stump. This one is worth about twenty-five thousand, and will be a help in his presidential campaign fund.

Too Unhappy to Kick—Again.
La Crosse Tribune: On sober second thought the assembly concluded that there wasn't room on the appropriate portion of Mr. Connor's anatomy upon which to plant another kick.

How About This, Icemen?
Superior Telegram: At Oshkosh the story is told of the father who, being without scales to weigh his new-born child, borrowed the iceman's and was astonished to find the infant weighed 45 pounds.

And Press-Bureau is Busy.
Green Bay Gazette: Indiana newspapers are warmly resenting the charges made by Collier's that Fairbanks received all of his aid early in life from wealthy relatives. To date this is the hottest feature of the Fairbanks campaign.

Des Moines' Little Stratagem.
Exchange: Des Moines has adopted a commission of five to take the place of a mayor, and the Detroit News remarks that this is presumably to avoid the predicament of having only one mayor and him in jail like San Francisco.

They Will Know Where.
Milwaukee News: While there may be no "fight" on La Follette, if recent election statistics are not wholly misleading, there are likely to be a great many voters that will not be told where they are at to balk at his presidential candidacy.

Fanciful and Amusing.
Oshkosh Northwestern: Every few days some admiring friend of La Follette proceeds to nominate and elect him as president, and seat him in the White House ready to commence the task of whipping the corporations and driving them into their holes.

One is Prone to Suspect All.
Appleton Post: The impression is rapidly gaining ground that the business men of Milwaukee who are not gratters are defaulters. When such splendid fellows as Ira B. Smith and F. E. Woelger go wrong, where can you expect to find immunes from the germ of dishonesty?

Whizz-Carts' Big Tribute.
Stoughton Hub: Two thousand automobile licenses have been issued by the secretary of state under the new automobile law, which takes effect July 1st, and the secretary estimates there are 13,000 more to be issued. This will bring a revenue to the state of $30,000.

We Have Weed Commissioners.
Wausau Herald: And now the Milwaukee Free Press proposes that a law be enacted to compel farmers to keep dandelions out of their meadows. Some of the "faithful" evidently find there are not enough jobs to go around. A dandelion commission would help some.

Too Bad; But He Didn't Do It.
Racine Journal: Another teacher, tried in court for spanking girls, has been acquitted. The proper punishment is for some brother or friend of the girl to get a rawhide and dose the brute/good and hard. The Bristow, Iowa, school board not only acquitted this man but raised his pay, rubbing the insult to decency in.

Forgetfulness is Here a Boon.
Exchange: It was just a year ago last night that Harry Thaw shot Stanford White at the Madison Square roof garden theater in New York. The tragedy was the sensation of the hour for a time, but it seems like an old story now, and by the time young Thaw is again brought to trial the memory of the people will have to be refreshed to recall the circumstances of the crime. It does not take long for the people to forget, after all.

They Were Only Thimble-Rigging.
Milwaukee Sentinel: Just what excuse twenty-two republicans had for voting with the democrats and socialists, thus passing through the assembly the 2-cent fare bill, other than an unworthy political motive, is not known. It is a fair assumption that which inspired the socialists and democrats, to wit: a desire to obtain political profit.

Catastrophy in Head-Liners.
La Crosse Tribune: Last evening, scrutinizing headlines, the "devil" found material for exercising the profundity of his logic. Turning to the legislative news he read, "Nye Bill Passes." After disturbed cogitation he queried, "Shouldn't it have been 'Bill Nye Passes'?" That explained, he found fault with, "Impeach Orchard." "Means 'Perch Orchard,' doesn't it?" he asked. And then the editor arose, in righteous wrath and explained that, not the "im," but the "each" should have been omitted. Whereupon the proofreader, faint and the police reporter turned in a fire alarm, stuck his scissors in his boot and ran out to negotiate for a schooner at Hub's navy yard.

Preparing to Fight.
Green Bay Gazette: Now it comes out. La Follette is to find opposition to his presidential ambition at home. The remnants of the stalwarts are planning a campaign against him. The declaration is made that it will be impossible for Senator La Follette to secure a solid delegation instructed for him for president in the republican national convention next year.

The friends of the senator, some time ago began systematic work in this state and are doing, and will continue to do, their best to secure the delegation for him. They are evidently well organized and have the advantage of working for a Wisconsin man for the highest position in the gift of the people of the United States. This will be an incentive to many to give him their support who might not do so in any other case. Added to this, a well-organized fighting force, the victors in many political fights, and it becomes apparent that victory is assured to them in many of the districts of the state.

How About That Old Chair?
You've been intending to have it "fixed up"—but haven't got around to it yet. It can be fixed up, too—fixed up good as new, at very little cost. Or maybe it's a couch which needs a new covering and upholstery.

This, it is understood, the stalwarts and other opponents are willing to concede. The most that they claim is that he will not be given a solid delegation from this state. Several of the districts have not been supporters of La Follette in the past and it is believed that by forcing the fighting in them, Taft delegations may be secured.

And Costs This Morning For Dealing in Junk Without a License—Was Ignorant of Ordinance.

Max Beckman, of Chicago, who was arrested yesterday on the charge of violating the first section of city ordinance No. 313 relating to the regulation of junk dealers, by buying old iron of Fred E. Green and selling it to a third party, without a license, appeared in municipal court this morning and entered a plea of "guilty." Ignorance of the ordinance was urged in extenuation of the act and Judge Fifield fixed the minimum fine of $5 and costs amounting to $2.60, which were paid. The maximum fine is $5 and the amendment to the ordinance (which was recently passed) provides for a license fee of $5 a day for transient junk dealers.

MORTUARY NEWS.

William Dooley.
All that is mortal of the late William Dooley will be tenderly laid at rest in Mount Olivet cemetery this evening, the body having arrived from Denver, Colorado, over the St. Paul road at one o'clock. Mr. Dooley's demise was a shock to his parents, sisters, brothers and friends and his loss will be deeply mourned. He had been in ill health for some time and on April 23 went west in the hope of finding relief in a higher, dryer altitude. At first the change appeared to benefit him, but diphtheria set in and on Wednesday morning death came suddenly to relieve his sufferings. He is survived by a father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Dooley of Locust street, and seven sisters and three brothers—Mrs. Ida Bidwell of Racine, Mrs. Harry Townsend of Magnolia, Mrs. Peter Garry of Magnolia, Mrs. John Murphy of Footville, John Dooley of Footville and Misses Abbie, Mary and Martha Dooley, and Richard and Arthur Dooley of this city.

'Sued for $408 00 Dental Bill'

This morning's Chicago papers give particulars of a case in court where a dentist is suing a patient for $408 for filling 14 teeth.

He brought in a lot of brother dentists who swore his charges were reasonable and that he might have charged anywhere from $200 to $1500 for the work and it would have been all fair.

That's just it. Some dentists charge all they think your purse will stand. That's where Dr. Richards is different.

He has fixed a fair price which will give him a living margin on his work. He makes gold crowns for $5.00 each and warrants them the same as you are paying $10.00 elsewhere.

The difference in price is all in the mind of the dentist you employ.

Not in the crown.

As a consequence, Dr. Richards is putting on as high as 55 crowns a month.

$10 is prohibitive, but most any one feels that a tooth is worth $5 saved to them for years of good service.

If you have him do your work it will be done right.

BUSY SCENES ON C. & N-W. LINE

BRIDGE BUILDERS, GRADERS, AND TRACK LAYERS AT WORK.

CONSTRUCTING NEW YARDS

Progress Made up to Present Time Shown in Accompanying Pictures—Steam Shovel in Operation.

To widen two cuts; shave down hills and elevations; to use this removed stone, gravel and dirt in filling valleys and gullies; to double several immense stone piers in Rock river and three abutments for the second rock bridge to widen a number of stone culverts, large and small; and to lay twenty miles of side track and five miles of dual track a force of two hundred men with three work trains, two large steam shovels and much other machinery, is at work along the main line of the Chicago & Northwestern railway between Janesville and a point five miles south. This number will be increased in the future, both by additions to the present gangs and by the commencement of building operations on a thirty-six stall roundhouse, an immense shop structure and numerous smaller frame buildings. The scene now presented is a busy one but a month hence a far more interesting sight will be offered.

What Result Will Be.

The result of all this hurry and bustle will be a mammoth switching and freight assorting yard in South Janesville—a yard capable of accommodating eight hundred or more cars and having caboose, repair and transfer sidings having an engine house in which thirty-six locomotives can be cared for at one time, with the necessary shops, storerooms and other adjuncts. November has been set for the date of completion but it hardly seems possible that the work can be rushed at such a pace as to fulfill the expectation.

IN THE ROCK PIT

Pontoon Bridge on River.

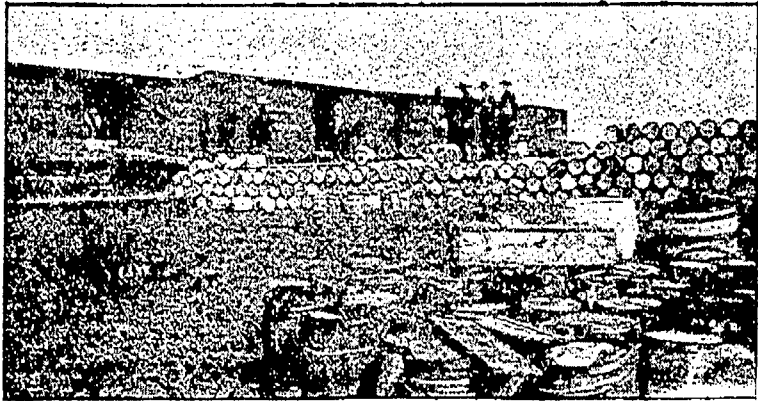

The first evidence of anything out of the ordinary along the line is a flagman at the southern end of the present yards. He is there to insure the safety of the work trains on the main track. The length of a city block below him a gang of workmen is building a pontoon bridge across Rock river. Their work is preliminary to the commencement of widening the piers and abutments on the bridge and on these an iron span, similar to the one already built, will be placed.

Scene in the Rock Cut.

Beyond the river and just past the viaduct that carries Center avenue over the tracks workmen in the employ of Hayes Bros. who have the grading contract are widening the cut in the old Milwaukee quarry. One of the accompanying pictures shows how this gang with pick and small blasts of powder is cutting away the cliff. The broken rock and refuse is being carried away in small dump cars, hauled by a team of horses, and deposited in a deep gulch just south a hundred yards.

One Siding Nearly Laid.

SANK TO DEATH IN ROCK RIVER

BATHING EXCURSION FATAL TO BRAKEMAN CHARLES SWAN.

SWIMMERS AFTER THE BODY

Companions Saw Him Go Over "Step-off" at Second Sand Bar and Were Unable to Rescue Him.

While bathing this morning at the second sand bar in Rock river, a popular but dangerous swimming hole three-fourths of a mile above the Fourth avenue bridge, Charles Swan, a railway brakeman about twenty-three years of age, walked over a "step-off" and sank slowly never to come out of the water alive. He went down in sight of his two companions, Danley Allen and Leo Tracy, and neither of them being good swimmers was able to make more than a feeble effort to save him. They secured a small piece of drift-wood and extended it to Swan as the latter began to disappear. Both Tracy and Allen state that the unfortunate young man did not again come to the surface and that not even a trail marked his downward course. From this it would appear that death came from heart failure as the trio had walked a mile in the hot sun and the water was still cold, the sun not having been up long enough to warm it.

Victim a Poor Swimmer.

Allen is night operator at the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul passenger depot and Tracy night clerk and caller. Swan was an extra brakeman and while visiting at the depot during the night, planned with the other two to go swimming this morning. Leaving work at seven o'clock they ate breakfast and then departed on their excursion. Swan was warned of the depth of the water, the speed of the current and the holes in river bed and advised not to go in unless he could swim. He said he had not been swimming for several years, but believed that he still knew the art. The three had been in the water but about ten minutes when Swan, wading but a few feet from shore, sank without a single cry for help, or a struggle.

Police Search for Body.

The nearest telephone is a quarter of a mile from the bar and thither a small boat was dispatched to notify the police. Word reached the city hall about half past nine o'clock. Officer John Brown and Patrolman Peter Champion immediately secured F. F. Pierson to go to the scene in his launch and, with grappling hooks belonging to him, assisted by Operator Allen they dragged the vicinity of the bar till a few minutes of twelve but without result. Brown's hook twice came in contact with some object in a hole twenty feet deep but all efforts to pull it out were fruitless. To catch hold of a naked body is a difficult matter and it is probable that Brown really did locate Swan. The search was abandoned during the noon hour and after dinner Mr. Pierson took the policeman and a few expert swimmers to the scene of the tragedy and about two o'clock the body was recovered.

Swan Well Known to Many.

Charles Swan has been a resident of Janesville and vicinity for several years. His father was killed on the railroad at Milton and a few years later died claimed his mother. For a few years he worked on J. B. Humphrey's farm at Afton. He is a nephew of Newton Dunnville and is distantly related to the other Dunnvilles of this city, Juda, and Monroe. He is survived by four brothers: Will, who is older, and three younger, Clifford of Delavan, Harry of Juda, and Roy of Missouri. Since living in Janesville Swan's genial freckled face had become well known to every railway man and scores of other people. Of stature he was short and thick set and his hair was sandy.

Do You Open Your Mouth

Like a young bird and gulp down what ever food or medicine may be offered you? Or do you want to know something of the composition and character of that which you take into your stomach whether as food or medicine?

Most intelligent and sensible people now-a-days insist on knowing what they employ whether as food or as medicine. Dr. Pierce believes they have a perfect right to insist upon such knowledge. So he publishes, broadcast and on each bottle wrapper, what his medicines are made of and what they are good for.

For the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and derangements, giving rise to frequent headaches, backache, dragging-down pain or distress in lower abdominal or pelvic region, accompanied, oftentimes, with a debilitating, pelvic, catarrhal drain and kindred symptoms of weakness, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy.

It is equally effective in curing painful periods, in giving strength to nursing mothers and in preparing the system of the expectant mother for baby's coming, thus rendering childbirth safe and comparatively painless.

The "Favorite Prescription" is a most potent, strengthening tonic to the general system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. It is also a soothing and invigorating nerve and cures nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysterical spasms, chorea or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the distinctly feminine organs.

A host of medical authorities of all the several schools of practice, recommend each of the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is made for the cure of the diseases for which it is claimed to be a cure. You may read what they say for yourself by sending a postal card request for a free booklet of extracts from the leading authorities, to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and it will come to you by return post.

Singular, and Fatal Accident.—A singular and fatal accident occurred at the meat bed of Allen & Richardson this week. A young man named Carey, who had been employed there, but who had been unwell for some days, started to go to his home across the fields and it was supposed stopped to drink at a pool where meat had been taken out for trial. The indications are that as he leaned forward with his head down to put his lips to the water his hands slipped and he went headforemost into the slough, for he was found dead yesterday with his head in the mud and his feet elevated in the air.

Squelched Him.—A fellow commenced the old swindling game of selling money this morning, near the Myers House, but he had only gone so far as to sell a $10 greenback for $9, and sundry ten cent pieces for five cents, when the Mayor, who heard something in his ear which wound him up in short order. He did not stand upon the order of his going, but went at once. So much the better for the unsophisticated.

RETURNS TO CLINTON AFTER SHORT VISIT

Frank Hartzel Who Shot John McCan Some Time Ago Has Come Back to His Home.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Clinton, Wis., June 29.—Frank Hartzel who shot and wounded John McCan in the face here a few months ago and who disappeared a few days after the event, came back to town today. No legal action has been started and it is not expected that there will. McCan, who seemed to be the aggressor left town at once, and has not been heard from since, although rumor has reached here of his death. It is not believed to be true, however, although the report caused Hartzel to leave.

JANESVILLE PEOPLE INTERESTED IN SUIT

Suit to Break the Will of the Late Christian Bauer Begun in Vernon County.

On April 10, 1906, Christian Bauer, a former resident of Vernon County, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Mohr, on Academy street, aged seventy years. He left property valued at forty to fifty thousand dollars in real estate in Vernon county, the heirs being Mrs. Mohr, Mrs. Luloff and Mrs. Holden of this city and a daughter in Vernon county, Mrs. Keps. By the will Mrs. Keps did not think she was given her share of the estate and suit was brought to break the will. The will was sustained by Judge Mahoney last fall and was taken on an appeal to the circuit court. Judge Fruto of La Crosse is hearing it. The contention of the contestants is that Mrs. Bauer was suffering from paresis and not able to make a will. Some forty-three odd witnesses have been called to testify, among them Dr. E. E. Loomis of this city, who attended Mr. Bauer in his last illness. The three daughters living in Janesville have been called to the trial and are there now. If the will is decided valid the bulk of the estate is divided among the Janesville heirs. Some time previous to Mr. Bauer's death doctors examined him with an idea of finding something the matter with his mental capacity and pronounced him sane.

SUPREME JUDGES MAY RETIRE ON HALF PAY

Measure Has Passed Both Houses of the Legislature—Goes into Effect This December.

The bill to pension the justices of the supreme court of this state after twenty years of service, putting them on a half-salary basis, was debated and concurred in by the assembly at Madison by a vote of 41 to 23.

The senate later concurred in the amendments and passed the bill. The debate arose largely over a difference of opinion as to what would be the most delicate way of enacting the law without suggesting to any member on the bench that his retirement is desired. The law will not go into effect until Dec. 31, 1909, when the term of the present chief justice expires.

Mr. Elver of Dane county and Mr. Ingram of Pepin county got into a row over the amendment by the latter which makes the law operative only after Dec. 31, 1909. Mr. Elver attempted to read into the presentation of the amendment a desire to forestall an appointment by Gov. Davidson before the present chief justice retires. He boldly accused a certain contingent of playing politics with the situation.

Argument Grows Heated

Mr. Ingram made a hot retort, resenting the accusation and alleging as a motive for the charge a grievance against the supreme bench and a desire on the part of Madison attorneys to play politics with the situation and secure the retirement of the chief justice and the appointment of one already slated to fill out the unexpired term.

Assemblyman Norcross deplored the unseemly exhibition, and stated that the desire of most of the members was to put on the books a law which would be interpreted to have been enacted in the right spirit; namely, a feeling on the part of the justices of this state that after years of faithful service the members of the supreme court should be given an opportunity to retire and receive remuneration in recognition of work for the state.

UNCLEAN MARKETS TO BE ALL REFORMED

Conditions of Groceries, Markets, Bakeries and Dairies Criticized in Lecture on "Clean Living" Given at University of Wisconsin Summer Session.

Madison, Wis., June 29.—"How many of you know whether your butcher cares for his horse in the stable and then comes in and, without washing his hands, cuts the steak for your dinner? How many know if the cat is allowed to walk about among the food at the market (as in one place in Madison); whether the cake, bread, and pieces at the bakery are left exposed to dust and to disease-carrying flies; whether the fruits bought are exposed on the street and handled over by dirty, sweaty hands?" These and other questions pertaining to public health in its relation to home life were discussed in a lecture to summer students on "Clean Living" given this morning by Miss Ellen A. Huntington of the department of home economics at the University of Wisconsin.

The prevalent method of marketing by telephone was named as a reason for the modern woman's ignorance of sanitary conditions in markets, dairies, groceries, and bakeries. The necessity for a competent milk inspector in every city was urged, as well as the need for daily free-garbage collection, by the city, inspection of the sources of supply for water and ice, and a system of inspection of school sanitation.

"In order to attain the maximum efficiency in service to the world, we must understand the environment we live in," said Miss Huntington in introduction. "The house is the mere shell, the protection for the individual and the family. But the individual and the family no longer live isolated lives, as in the pioneer days; they are a part of the community. The activities within the home as they relate to the health of the community form a large subject for study in which the interdependence of home economics and public health is apparent. It is estimated that the death rate in America is nearly twice that estimated as necessary, and that ten in every thousand die needlessly,—half of them in the prime of life. For a city of 100,000 this means 500 deaths annually among persons most valuable to the community. It is readily seen why the study of sanitary science is strongly urged, and why the cost of various departments of household activity should be considered not merely in the light of economics and aesthetics, but by hygiene also.

Milk a Disease Medium

"Granting that diet and disease are intimately related, let us see how they are connected with certain public enterprises. All homes need milk. It has been conclusively proven that milk is an excellent medium for disease dissemination, as in the scarlet fever epidemic in Chicago, and the various typhoid epidemics in other cities. Almost invariably infected milk comes from unclean dairies. Milk that was kept clean and cold has been sent to Paris and kept perfectly sweet for twenty-one days. Absolute cleanliness of the barns, of the cattle, of the workers, and of their utensils will produce good milk, and will pay well. We need a milk inspector here in Madison.

"We must exert our influence in a movement toward clean markets. Many people do their marketing, by telephone, buying from places that they would never patronize if they could see conditions there. How many women know whether the food is kept clean in the meat markets, groceries, and bakeries where they buy? How many women know the sanitary condition of the schools in which their children are spending five of the twelve hours of the day? Is the ventilation good? Is the building clean? Are the toilet facilities right, and what precautions are taken against disease? Men and women are equally responsible for the health of the school children. In matters of public and private sanitation all should be vitally interested. The disposal of sewage and garbage is of great importance, on account of the great danger of disease breeding and offensive odors. Madison has 1,900,000 gallons of sewage for disposal daily. Garbage should be collected much oftener than is usual, and such service, with the collection of ashes, should be done free by the city."

THE WEATHER MAN HAS WORK ARRANGED

Methods of Observing and Forecasting Explained in University of Wisconsin Summer Session Lecture by J. L. Bartlett, U. S. Weather Bureau.

Madison, Wis., June 29.—"How to be a weather prophet" was the substance of a lecture given this afternoon by J. L. Bartlett of the U. S. Weather Bureau to the summer session students at the University of Wisconsin. The lecture was illustrated with numerous fine stereopticon slides showing views of observatories in different parts of the world, the instruments used in taking observations, the weather maps drawn from data thus secured, and the forms of clouds which one may recognize by wind, rain, and other storm indications.

"To obtain an accurate knowledge of the weather at any particular time," said Mr. Bartlett, "it is necessary to make an observation of the values of the various atmospheric elements. Temperature is observed by means of the thermometer; pressure by the barometer; rainfall is collected in gages and measured. Wind velocity is measured by the anemometer and wind direction is determined by wind vanes. The kind and amount of clouds must be observed, as well as the direction in which they are moving.

"The U. S. Weather Bureau maintains some 200 observation stations scattered throughout the country, at which daily observations are taken at 8 o'clock, morning and night, seven times daily at meridian time. The results of these observations are immediately put into cipher code and telegraphed all over the country. Telegraph operators at various important points receive these messages and as the telegrams pass issue weather maps properly marked with the indications. Such a map-issuing station of the weather bureau may receive one week-day message from 75 to 100 cipher weather reports and to be found, twenty-four hours later, over Wisconsin or Lake Michigan. A forecast may then be made accordingly. In actual practice forecasting is much more complicated, and the accuracy of the predictions depends greatly upon the ability to foresee the frequent erratic and abnormal movements of weather areas, an ability only to be had by scientific study and long experience."

DEADLY TETANUS IS LURKING IN THE AIR

The Fourth of July Always Brings Its List of Accidents—Some Preventatives.

"With the near approach of July 4th and its death dealing celebration people should give time and study to treatment and remedies to be used in case of accident and injury from explosives. Tetanus is the cause of the great number of deaths on the 4th and injuries, no matter how slight, should be promptly attended to and dressed. The use of the little can, pistols on the Fourth has caused more deaths than the largest firecrackers, as the injury is often apparently slight but the after results are terrible. Wounds from explosives should be washed out carefully with antiseptics, and should not be bound up tight so that the air cannot reach them. It is always best to get a physician as soon as possible but any one can give the preliminary treatment.

On the Fourth of July, 1906, 158 persons were killed outright or fatally hurt, and 5,368 were injured. Of the 158 who lost their lives 75 died of tetanus. Of the remaining 83, 28 were killed by gunshot wounds, of which 14 were caused by stray bullets from the reckless use of loaded firearms on the part of others; 18 persons, mostly young children, were burned to death by fire resulting from fireworks; 18 persons were killed by explosions of powder, dynamite, and railway torpedoes; 2 were killed by cannon, one by a misdirected sky-rocket, one by a fall in an effort to avoid a giant cracker; and one in a runaway where the horses were frightened by the explosion of a large cracker. Probably the worst instance was an explosion of powder near Wilkes-barre, Pennsylvania, by which six boys who were preparing to celebrate were killed outright. Of the injured 5,368, 22 suffered complete loss of sight, 72 the loss of one eye, 56 the loss of legs, arms, or hands, and 227 the loss of fingers.

SMALL FORTUNE IN CROW BOUNTIES PAID OUT FOR RAVENS?

Guy Wheeler Says That There Isn't a Crow in the County and Never Has Been One.

"There isn't a crow in the county and never has been during the sixty-four years I have lived here," said Guy Wheeler this afternoon. "The county board has been paying hundreds of dollars in ten cent bounties on the heads of ravens—a species of carrion birds which never touches corn or other grain." Sutton Norris says there isn't a crow in the state of Wisconsin and I believe he is right. A raven is as big again as a crow. The county board ought to know better."

Severe Pains

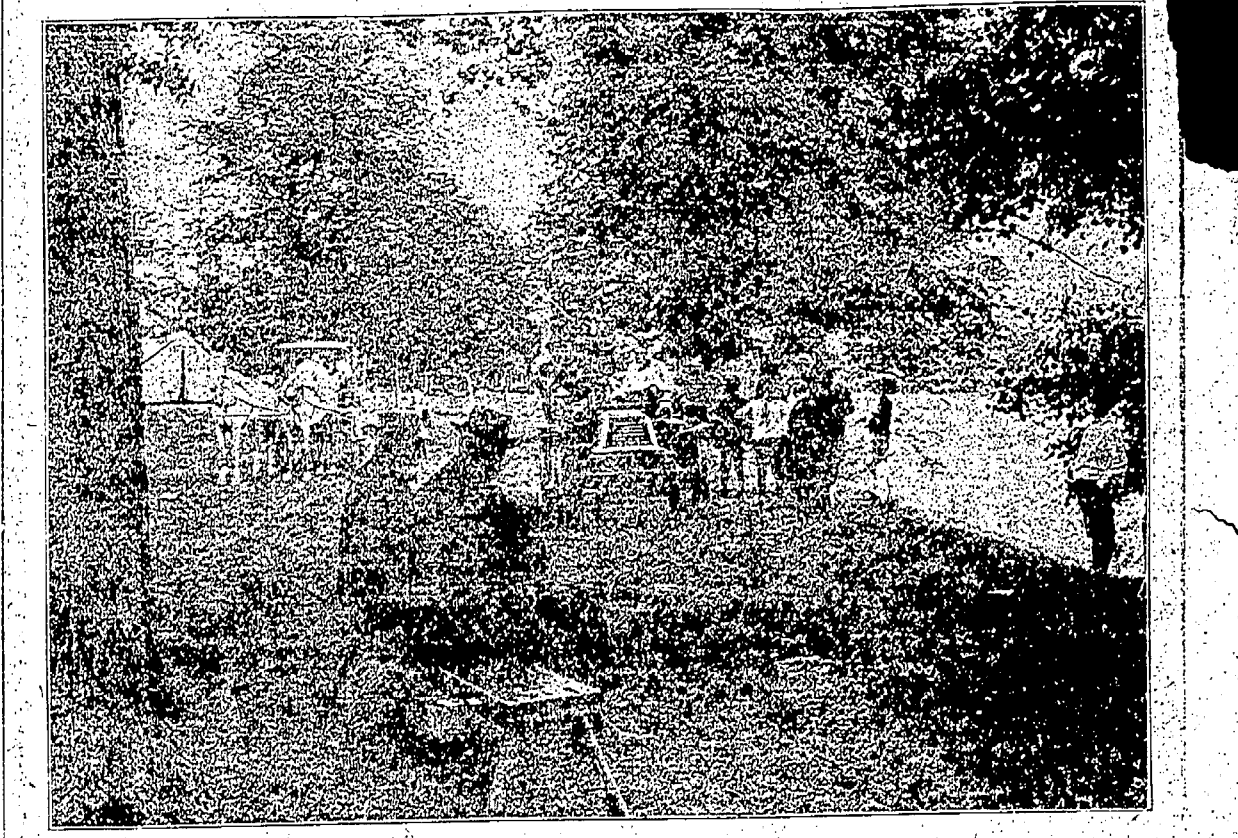

When a prominent nerve is affected, the pain is severe. It is called neuralgia. It may be in either the head or body. Relief comes only when this nerve trouble is overcome. By its soothing and strengthening influence upon the nervous system Dr. Miles' Nerve Remover cures.

"It was about two years ago that I was taken down with what the doctors claimed was neuritis, and I called it lightning rheumatism. Sharp pains would go from one place to another, mostly in my head and there would last two or three days before I could get relief. During these spells I would be so nervous that I hardly knew what I was doing. The pains were so severe and exhausting that when walking across the room I would have to stop and my heart would palpitate, and in a day or two I would feel better. Just as soon as I would expose myself to a spell of neuralgia, I have taken lots of doctor's medicine, but I might just as well take water. My aunt kept writing me to just try Dr. Miles' Nerve Remover, and I am thankful that I was persuaded to do so, for the Nerve Remover cured me—has driven it out of my system."

HONONEGAH FOR THE FOURTH

You Can Get

PURITY ICE

As easily and cheaply as the other kind.

You demand purity in the food you eat—in the water you drink. Why not in the ice you use? For often your food comes into contact with the ice—and often the ice goes into your drinking water to cool it.

Do you know whether the ice you use is PURE, or whether it was cut from water that you would not bathe in?

Do you know that Crystal Lake "Purity" Ice costs no more than the other kind?

Do you know that it is harvested from fresh, clear spring water, at Crystal Lake, Ill.?

Do you know that it is stored in clean ice-houses and handled from start to finish with absolute cleanliness?

Is this knowledge a satisfaction to you?

PURITY ICE

IS JUST ANOTHER NAME FOR

CRYSTAL LAKE ICE

You get it this way:

Purchase a Coupon Book of us.

When you need ice, just place the card—which we will give you --where the ice-man can see it.

He will deliver the ice and take from the book coupons for just the amount of ice delivered.

A 2,000 lb. book costs $5.50
A 1,000 lb. book costs $2.75
A 350 lb. book costs $1.00

Which is $2.00—and more—per thousand cheaper than Crystal Lake Ice sells for in other cities the same distance from the ice-fields

Both phones 201 calls up our office.

WOULD YOU DRINK RIVER WATER? THEN WHY PUT RIVER ICE IN YOUR DRINKING WATER?
